Art Unit: 1754

It is requested that the continuing data inserted into instant pg. 1 be updated.

The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claim 24 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The limitations of claim 24 are new matter.

Claim 24 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 24 is indefinite as it depends from canceled claim 23.

Art Unit: 1754

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3-14,17-21,24-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over France 1,066,777 or Stewart '099 or Stewart '929 each in view of Chao '837.

Each of France '777 and Stewart '099 and Stewart '929 teaches the claimed process steps of heating a titaniferous material to a temperature of less than 1300°C, cooling the heated product to form a solidified product and then leaching the solidified product (see the claims of France '777; col. 3 and example 1 and Table 1 of Stewart '099; and col. 2, the examples and claims and Table 1 of Stewart '929). The heating would appear to provide the instantly claimed solid titaniferous phase and the liquid oxide phase since the reactants and temperatures are the same as those instantly claimed.

The subject matter as a whole would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to select the portion of the prior art's range which is within the range of applicant's claims because it has been held to be obvious to select a value in a known range by optimization for the best results, see In re Boesch, 205 USPQ 215.

The subject matter as a whole would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have selected the overlapping portion of the range

disclosed by the reference because overlapping ranges have been held to be a prima facie case of obviousness, In re Malagari, 182 USPQ 549.

Chao teaches that acid as well as alkali leach treatments remove impurities from titaniferous material (see example 3, Table II).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use either an acid or an alkali leachant in each of the processes of the primary references because Chao teaches both acids and alkali leach treatments to be capable of leaching impurities from titaniferous material.
